

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT THINK-ETS

"I think the purchase was one of the best toy buys I have made. The "story creation" games are the hot item right now with our girls. A perfect activity for empowering their senses of self worth and creative freedom. As you are well aware, a central virtue of your product is the range of activities it offers."

-George Hersh, Grandfather

"All 3 of my children ages 12, 9 & 7 love the game. Also anyone I introduce it to does as well. I have fun making up stories with the pieces and also just holding and looking at them. We have 5 sets & plan to buy more as gifts."

-Noelle Southwick, mother

"I love your product. We play games all the time and end up rolling on the floor laughing at the situations we create."

-Bob Ellis, CEO/Inventor, GarageCo Toys (maker of the Yo Baby Action Board)

"It was a game the grandkids enjoyed a lot because they were able to use their imagination. They didn't want to stop playing it."

-Grandparent

"My family and I have had some rollicking good times playing Think-ets. It's a terrific game for both sides of the brain!"

- Daniel H. Pink, author of A WHOLE NEW MIND

"We just received our Think-ets sports and fairy games. Just wanted to thank you so much for making such wonderful games – my kids LOVE them! Every night they ask to play - some nights we've had to replace story time with game time (which is actually great for their creativity)."

"You have a great product and every time someone sees us playing Think-ets they ask about them. Good job, and thanks!"

"Of all the presents my daughter Molly received for her birthday, the one she and I really love is the bag with the items that you make up your own story from (Think-ets Fairy Collection). Such a simple thing but one that opens up a huge amount of imagination and make believe. So far we have had lots of fairy princesses using the magic wand and collecting flowers in the flower pot from mountains in faraway places."

"What a great idea for the little ones and to keep them busy at a restaurant while we wait for our food to get to our table."

"Think-ets is the best new toy available today!"

"A sister-in-law from Brooklyn, NY had Think-ets on a recent extended family trip to Florida and it was played often with cousins at restaurants, poolside, and waiting places. Now I'm back home and am buying one for us and others to give to the other side of the family and for future birthday gifts to have on hand. I had not seen it before! Great item!"

"We loved this game and highly recommend it for families! I love the small size of the pouch—it can easily fit into a purse or diaper bag. The games are Brain-Boosters to enhance memory and critical thinking skills. Think-ets are a great activity to play while waiting for a doctor appointment, waiting for food at a restaurant, or an anytime challenge. My son can't wait for us to add our own trinkets to the pouch!"

I have shared your great product at our department speech meeting and it is listed on my blog too!"

"Today in the car, out of the blue, my daughter blurted out, 'I LOVE Think-ets!' Now that's plain and simple praise."

"I gave my two sons a bag of think-ets for Hanukkah. It was instantly a hit! We played the game for over an hour and had so much fun as a family. Brilliant idea. My boys are 5 and 3...to keep their minds working while playing for over an hour is a hard find!"

"I love following your company -- Think-ets are still my go-to gift for so many of my friends!"

"I thought you might like to know that I work in a not very kid-friendly restaurant (think boring for kids) and the Think-ets that I keep in my work bag have saved a couple of families from the dreaded meltdown. That's what we use ours for too. Great product."

"I started using Think-ets in my English classroom last year in the spring to practice test taking skills. We are preparing to use them as story starters this year. We love them."

Linda Woodward, Flatwoods Elementary School, Jonesville, Virginia

"The concept of this game is just amazing. I'm all for games/toys that require kids (& adults as well) to use their imaginations. Not only is this a fun game to play with the kids in my life but the adults as well. What a simple yet brilliant idea!!"

"Thank you SO much for providing so much play for my grandchildren. They just love your game. It is just the most wonderful toy. Think-ets is a delight."

"We love having our Think-ets and we put on a play for Mommy with all of our Think-ets."

"Think-a-lot story telling has proved to be something that we can share with our middle school grand-daughter and our second grader grand-daughter at the same time. The old and the young sitting at the same table and playing together. An inestimably valuable gift."

"Think-ets offers such an important medium of expression for children who cannot always find the words to convey how they feel. I believe many of the students with whom I work are in a better emotional place because of this game."

— Teresa Derry, owner of Annie's Toy Chest in Cocoa, Fla., told TDmonthly in March 2009 that her stores sells about 12 Think-ets per week, keeping them located near the register. "I can't keep it in the store," she said.

"I am a Rehab Manager employed by a large organization with hundreds of speech therapist and am using them with the adult/ geriatric population. Think-ets are fantastic!! I can't wait to share Think-ets with my colleagues. They are going to love them and want them too!"

"I love think-ets and am using them with my adult patients in the rehab setting. They are great for reminiscing activities, memory activities and language tasks. The uses of think-ets in a treatment session are only limited to your imagination!" –Speech Therapist

"Who would have thought that mini trinkets would evoke such conversation and responses from my patients. Everyone loves to hold the trinkets and tell their story!" –Speech Therapist

"I love the size of Think-ets. They fit in my pocket and are an easy way to always have a treatment task at hand." –Speech Therapist

"We are all speech therapists and LOVE them!!"

"We love, love, love your product!"

"Yay! What a great game! We love Think-ets! You can make up your own rules. Also most of the stories we create make us laugh. There is no limit to the creativity and fun you put in to your games. Think-ets are great but be careful not to drop them in between the seatbelts in a car. You never get bored of Think-ets. They are like a new game every time you open your little sack. We strongly suggest buying your own Think-ets. They help your mind grow in a fun creative way."

Emily and Abigail - Age 10

"I'm a consultant and use games like these to warm up a group before beginning an Innovation Brainstorming session."

"I knew that my daughter would love them. She gets very bored during the morning service at church and these will give her something quiet to do."

"I ordered two and my kids are NUTS about them."

"Thanks for sending me the sample. I had a chance to test it out on my 2, 4 and 6 year old last friday night at a restaurant while we were waiting for our dinner to be served. My 6 year old really loved it. My four year old loved it when we used only a few of the items at a time."

"I personally LOVE this game and think it is AMAZING, creative and a blast to play and take along where ever you go."

"My 11 year old twin girls love the little pieces in this game. This game comes with us in the van and the girls dream up new stories all the time. Amazing that such a little thing could elicit so much creativity! I recommend buying a separate game for each child in your family, they will want their own set."

"We find your Think-ets a delight. Our two granddaughters, ages 6 and 10 often come to our house, individually or together. We have a large collection of small toy figures: zoo and farm animals, story-book characters, dragons, unicorns, and whatever the plural of Pegasus is, plus a lot of small building blocks. The girls often go into the living room by themselves, select a group of these toys, and put on a tea party, a story, or an adventure. I would love to be a fly on the wall to hear what they do, but it is their activity and they want no adult intervention. We also have a mantelpiece collection of Zuni fetish animals, small carvings that we get from a friend who teaches English as a second language to the Pueblo children."

“When we bring out the Think-ets - and, given a choice of activities, the girls often ask for them - we usually do stories. The girls ask for specific animals from the mantelpiece to supplement the objects provided. “A bear” is a common request, but we also use skunks, turtles, rabbits, mountain lions, etc. Stories ramble and go on until we run out of objects. Grandfather has become the subject of a special rule, forbidding me from ending a story line when it is my turn.

“The memory game and its variants are a favorite of mine from the “jewel game” in Kipling's Kim - dreadfully racist in the casual Brit style, but still a treasured book from my childhood. Your sets of objects are perfectly suited to an introduction to that game. I think the purchase was one of the best toy buys I have made. The “story creation” games are the hot item right now with our girls. A perfect activity for empowering their senses of self worth and creative freedom. As you are well aware, a central virtue of your product is the range of activities it offers.

Prosper and grow!

-George Hersh, Grandfather

My 4 year old son and I enjoy Think-ets in restaurants, on planes, and at home on rainy days. They are just the right size for a plane's tray table or a place setting in a crowded restaurant. They keep us engaged for at least 30 minutes, depending on how creative I am in thinking up questions and games on the spot! They allow us to create a private space with each other even when we are in a crowded public location, and they give him and me a “baby-free” activity when he needs a break from his 10-month-old brother. I expect as my 4-year-old gets older that we will be able to do even more--maybe switching roles back and forth. Think-ets are easy to carry and, unlike many of my son's preferred activities, require no cleanup afterwards! We are a fairly “anti-stuff” family and many of the toys available in stores don't meet our standards. I will be proud to give Think-ets to others.

-Deborah Barber, Mother

“I love Think-ets! I think Think-ets are great toys to play with if you are on-the-go. I played Think-ets with two of my friends and we had so much fun making up stories.”

-Aleanna Collins, 11 year old

“Very fun! There was much laughter over the stories!

-Ingrid Mueller, retired Nurse

“This would be so great for my home school group. They are always looking for new things to do and we could use them in my writing class when we get stuck. And I would buy them for all my friends.”

- Tehya Brown, 13 yr old

“My granddaughter Noelle and I play the game where we tell a story in segments, taking turns...it really turns her on...and she laughs and laughs and laughs when she comes up with a really off-the-wall idea! Think-ets has opened up a whole new world of creativity for us!”

-Eva Mesmer, Grandmother, retired Teacher

“Next time I see you can I play the game? I think these should be in every single store.”

-Jasper Brockett, 4 yr old

“I would love to buy them for all my nieces and nephews. It's great game for stimulating their imaginations.”

-Linda Tate, University professor of Literature

"This game is awesome!!! I don't want to stop playing."

-Olivia Orlando, 11 year old

"I like playing the 'What's Missing' game at restaurants. I like playing the story game, too, because I get to make up stories. I like inventing new games, too."

-Ryder Perry, 14 year old

"My children and I play Think-ets when we are waiting in the car, at a restaurant, or sometimes on a quiet day at home. At different ages, they go through stages of which games they like to play. There was a real memory fascination stage as well as a storytelling stage, which is my personal favorite. Since I am an artist, I often add my own miniatures to the collection to surprise them and to make the game more personal for our family. It is a great way to unite as a family and to get your creative juices flowing!"

-Rebecca DiDomenico, artist

"Think-ets is a super-fun and exciting game for people of all ages to play everywhere! My dad and I play them at restaurants and at home. All of my friends like to play with them, too. We never get bored with them and sometimes we make up our own games. We especially like the story game. We have a hard time deciding who gets to go first and they keep us busy for hours. They're GREAT!!"

-Meryl Compton, 12 year old

"Think-ets are fun and a great way to start conversations with your children. You can play the wonderful games suggested or design your own. The possibilities are endless. Once you get started you won't want to stop playing and neither will your kids. This simple special product by virtue of its intrinsic play value will take you back to a time when people really played with and talked to their kids."

-Lynn Rosenblum, President,
Toy Power Consulting

"Think-ets are a great, creative game for any age, anywhere. My husband and I keep them at our camper and sit and play games with them inside if it's raining or outside on the picnic table. We'll keep them around for when our toddler is ready to play with them safely and isn't in the 'put everything in your mouth' stage."

-Erica Lovestrand, wife and mother
